CLASS PROPHECY

It was a cold, icy night in December when I, the former KATHY BARTLETT, and my husband, HANK KNUTH, returned from our honey-moon in California. As we rounded a bend in northern Wisconsin, headlights shined in our eyes, blinding us for an instant; when things finally cleared up again, to our horror, a huge van was swerving toward the car in front of us. There was nothing we could do but watch as the car was hurled into the ditch, and overturned.

The van driver came rushing forward, and who should it be but BOB LANGE a schoolmate of ours. He wrung his hands nervously and paced back and forth.

The victims were cleared of the wreck, and several were just bruised. Three ladies, who were in the wrecked car, gathered around one victim, who seemed seriously injured. As I approached, they turned anxious eyes toward me. Immediately I recognized them as MARJORIE EATON, JOYCE BLACKOON, and SYLVIA RAETHER. The victim was none other than GRACE KELLY. I turned to the ladies and told them to be calm, and keep as warm as possible. Then an observer, who happened to be DEAN JOHNSTON, asked if her could go to the neighbors, who lived nearby, and borrow some blankets.

Meanwhile, my husband phoned the ambulance at the same home, which by coincidence was that of the former ARDITH BAUCH, now Mrs. Lawson. I maneuvered over to the last victim, ALICE RAETHER, who was driving when the accident occurred. As I administered first-aid, a young man came rushing through the crowd and knelt beside Alice. When he looked at me, I remembered vaguely seeing him before; then I knew he was ALWIN FOLDY! About that time Dean returned with the blankets and together we worked to make the victims both comfortable and warm. Then I had time to look around me.

Directing traffic was DUANE RUGOTZKE, while the local constable, TOM ROURVILLE, questioned the van driver. I turned just in time to see a woman gesturing madly and a young gentleman trying to calm her. As they neared, I recognized them as KAY THOMPSON and JACK SOLIE! Suddenly from nowhere, a news reporter, BILL KUCKENBECKER, came onto the scene; but even though there was a lot of excitement his efforts for news were useless. DAVE SHONG, a photographer accompanied him. From a distance, the siren of the ambulance could be heard; and soon the ambulance was in front of me. Two men jumped out bearing a stretcher, both of whom looked very much like MICKEY AYERS, and MERLIN BALL. The ambulance driver was KIRK BECHTEL, another graduate of our class. While they were carrying the victim to the ambulance, the state patrolman, ROGER HERRICK, arrived.

We then were asked to take the three unhurt people and slightly injured GRACE KELLY to their homes and call the wrecker. Fifteen minutes later, the wrecker arrived, and who should be the mechanics but CHUCK CONNETT and LEONARD VON HADEN. They informed me that GORDON JAENKE was now managing the wrecker company. My husband helped get the car hooked onto the wrecker.

We then went to the hospital to find out how the patient was. When we stepped inside, Mrs. Larson, the former JEAN MARY BOETTCHER, came and questioned us about the night's happenings. We walked up to the receptionist, who was MARY ANN BALLIETT, and were informed that the patient was in room 302, on the second floor. MARCIA BARKA was working at the desk as a Medical Librarian.

When we walked toward the elevator, a patient in a wheelchair exclaimed, "Well, hello!" Turning, I recognized her as ELAINE ZANK, and who should be wheeling her, none other than DIANE DVORAK, now a nurse. We chatted a moment, then pushed the elevator button. As the doors slowly opened, who could we discover but DOROTHY MARION, the elevator operator. As we stepped off the elevator, I noticed ZOE ANN TURNER, who was talking with JOE GRAHAM, now a minister, and a tall intern JOHN JONES.

PROPHECY CONTINUED

Continuing down the hall, we inquired of PAT OSBORN, a nurse's aid, where room 302 was. Entering the room, we found our schoolmate, CAROL REINEKE, as Alice's private nurse. Dr. GORDON TIMM, told us the patient was fine and would be released the following day.

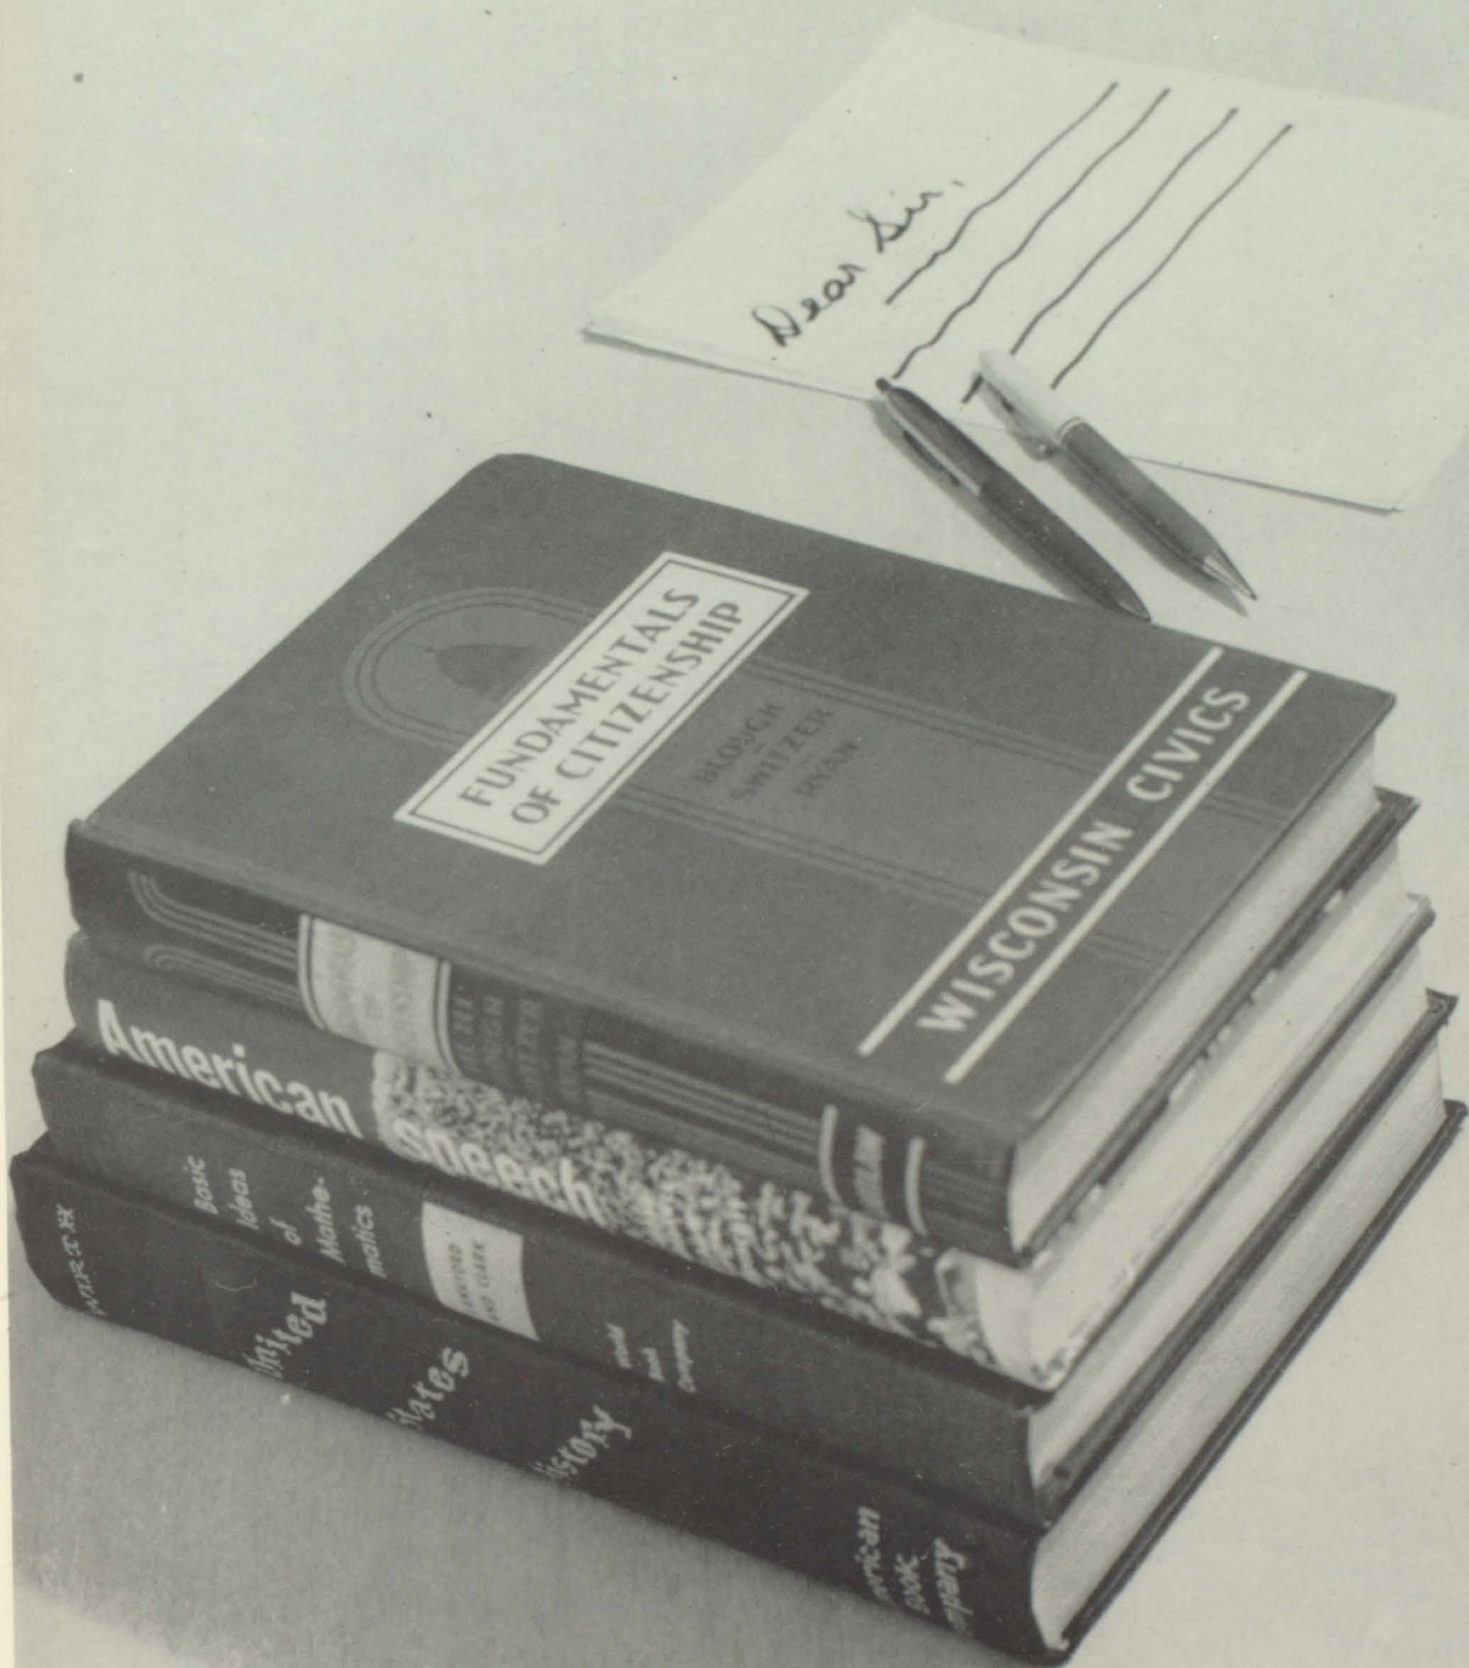

Standing in front of the hospital, we noticed a young fellow, none other than DON BAUCH, putting up a billboard containing a huge picture of CHUCK MUELLER advertising Slick-em-Down Hair Oil. Across the street was the Pig Skin Restaurant owned by MERV RAHL. We stopped to have lunch and were surprised to find SHIRLEY SCOTT, now Mrs. Warner, ELNIA ZELL, and YVONNE MCCORD, as waitresses.

The next morning, we went to the courthouse and found JERRY KORTH and BETTY RINGHAND as secretaries. GARY GUNDERSON, Sergeant of Arms, sat near the door ready for action. NANCY OSBORN was operating the switchboard. Judge HARVEY COLE presided. The lawyer for the van driver was JOE EKLUND and the lawyer for the car driver was JIM ZIEHR, and the jury members were PHIL LOWMAN, HELEN BAUER, DE LORIS BEHRENS, ELWIN ZELL, SHIRLEY ZOOK, and NANCY DANIELS. The insurance man, DON SELL estimated the damage of $800. The court secretary, CAROL RUGOTZKE, was kept busy recording in shorthand every word being said. The jury found neither party was at fault and court was adjourned.

Returning home, we turned on the radio for some relaxing music and heard SUE LOIBL'S orchestra with none other than WAYNE HELLER on the bass fiddle.

Suddenly, I remembered that we needed a little gas in order to reach home, so we stopped at the nearest station. When I rolled down the window, MARY ZEBARTH, owner of the station, asked politely, "May I help you?" Glancing over the other gas pump I noticed LARRY RUCKS checking the oil in his car. We continued happily on our way home then, delighted with the thought of seeing all of our former schoolmates.
